FAQ:

Why is this better than a desktop?

Answer: With our solution, your desktop, apps, and data follow you wherever you go. Plus you add the ability to access the exact same setup from any tablet, laptop, or smartphone, or a desktop in the office, or wherever you are. Because it's the same familiar user experience, there's minimal training.

It seems quite complicated and expensive to implement.

Answer: It's actually quite simple. Just like a smart phone experience, you can easily set up your desktop applications with our one-click ordering. The billing is streamlined into one predictable amount per user. Since you have full control to add or delete apps per user, you don't pay for licenses you aren't using. Plus, there are no upfront infrastructure costs to purchase and no minimum commitment.

I'm concerned about performance and connectivity issues

Answer: Actually, anywhere there's an internet connection, you'll have access to your entire set of apps, as well as all your data, providing you with more connectivity than you currently have with your desktop-only versions. Plus, all your apps will be updated when needed without any work on your end, so you'll always be using the most recent version.

We don't want to lose control of our applications, data, and desktops. I'm very concerned about security and compliance issues.

Answer: Your data is stored in a secure datacenter featuring enterprise-class security and data protection, and managed by an experienced team of engineers. With the hosted solution, these features come standard with every desktop provisioned in our cloud.

We have a lot of custom apps, so it probably won't work for us.

Answer: That's not a problem. We can host all your custom apps or special requests. Plus, our marketplace currently houses a wide variety of popular business apps across all industries. With just a single click, you can add any of them to your cart and be up and running.

Why wouldn't I just use cloud-based services like QuickBooks Online?

Answer: Often times web-based solutions are a watered down version of the software because third-party apps generally are unable to integrate with these solutions. Such is the case with QuickBooks Online, for example. With a hosted solution, customer has a Windows-based virtual desktop which will house the fully functional versions of applications just like they are used to operating on their personal computers.
